

This #ThankfulThursday, we're excited to meet Allison Bond, Director of Marketing for Sienna, where she has been doing amazing work for the past five years.

Allison is a native of Huntsville, Texas. She tells us that she's, "blessed to belong to a big, wonderful, close-knit family." She's a graduate of Sam Houston State University (Eat 'Em Up Kats!).

We asked Allison who her hero is, and she lovingly said, "My mother is my hero. She is a blessing to not just our immediate family, but so many in her community. Her life is a model of loving service to others."

What is her favorite "spot" in Sienna? The patio at Sawmill Lake Club!

What are her favorite pastimes? "I'm fortunate in that many aspects of my job are favorite pastimes - copywriting, photography, graphic design, planning." she says. "There's a lot of creativity and imagination involved. Outside of work, it's running, yardwork, cooking, and spending time with my family."

We were curious what has been most rewarding during her time working in Sienna, and she shared, "There is so much thoughtful and deliberate planning that goes into every aspect of the growth of Sienna. It's rewarding when people love the community so much they choose to buy a home here."

Allison gushes when talking about Sienna! "Sienna is a great community now, but just wait! There is so much more in store. It's easily one of the best master planned communities in the nation. I'm excited for everyone who lives here – and for future residents."

Allison: you've done, do and will do such an AMAZING job promoting Sienna and all of the amazing things that it has to offer! We're SO very thankful for you and all that you do.
